3. From time immemorial the temples circumstanced like the one in Question derive some revenue from these temporary booths, and in accordance with this usage, the Amildar suggests that the following rates should be levied on those opened in the plot in Question.

| Nature of shops | Rate of Tax per Jo. |
|---|---|
| Cloth | 2 — 4 Rs |
| Provision | 1 — 2 Rs |
| Fruit stalls and other miscellaneous shops | 8 As — 1 Re |
| Sweet-Meat-shop | 2 — 4 Rs. |

These rates are not exorbitant and may be approved.

4. The imposition of tax on such temporary selling places is done in the Inam Department independently of the Revenue Department. In the latter, the District Officer and his Assistants settle cases of the kind, without reference to the amount thereof. There appears therefore

And,

Deputy Commissioner's Docket-No. 471 dated 18th November 1896 reporting that the site in question does not belong to the temple but that, however, as the land is used for the accommodation of pilgrims and by the traders for the erection of temporary shops during the Jatra season, the ~~rents~~ tax levied on the

The deputy Commissioner while recommending the levy of a small fee on all shops established in front of the temple during the Jatra season, states that the site in question does not belong to the temple, evidently because at the Survey Settlement the land has been recorded as "Village site". But this view is not correct. For though for the purposes of the Village Land Revenue Account

an area is deducted from the revenue paying area and shewn separately
as 'Village site' which,
among others includes the land on which the temple stands and the land in question, yet
as the Survey Department makes no record of rights within such sites, it cannot be held that no
land belongs to the temple
merely because the said Revenue Account contains

no

9 No entry of any particular land as belonging to the temple. On the other hand the temple must be considered as entitled to all lands which have been in its use in the absence of proof to the contrary. No such proof exists in this case; the villagers themselves state that the land has all along been considered as temple property and used for the accommodation of pilgrims and for setting up temporary shops by traders during the temple Jatras. The Government therefore are of opinion that the land in question must be held as attached to the temple.

2. The ~~imposition~~ levy of ground-rent for all shops temporarily set up on the ~~ground and part~~ belonging to the temple during the Jatra season is sanctioned.

The deputy Commissioner will frame a reasonable scale of rates with reference to the nature of trade and publish it at the time of the Jatra

Docket No. 43, dated 13th July 1897, from the Deputy Commissioner, Bangalore district, soliciting sanction to the levy of tax on the temporary shops established on the vacant ground in front of the Sri Venkatramanaswami temple at Kullahalli, Kankanalli taluk, on the occasion of the annual car festival and the appropriation of the realisations for the benefit of the temple. And Deputy Commissioner's docket No 471, dated 13th November 1896, reporting that the site question does not belong to the temple, but that, however, as the land is used for the accommodation of pilgrims and by the traders for the erection of temporary shops during the jatra season, the tax levied on the shops is justly due to the temple.

DATED, BANGALORE, 8TH NOVEMBER 1897.

ORDER THEREON.—The Deputy Commissioner, while recommending the levy of a small tax on all shops established in front of the temple during the jatra season, states that the site in question does not belong to the temple, evidently because at the survey settlement the land has been recorded as "Village site." This view is not correct. For purposes of the village Land Revenue Account, an area is deducted from the revenue-paying area and shown separately as "Village site" which, among other lands, includes in this case the land on which the temple stands or is attached to it. The Survey Department makes no record of rights within such village site. The absence in the Revenue Account of entry of any particular land within the village site as belonging to the temple, is no proof against the temple's right to it. On the other hand, the temple must be considered as entitled to all lands which have been in its use in the absence of proof to the contrary. No such proof exists in this case; the villagers themselves state that the land has all along been considered as temple property and used for the accommodation of pilgrims, and for setting up temporary shops by traders during the temple jatras. The Government, therefore, are of opinion that the land in question must be held to belong to the temple.

2. The levy of ground-rent from all shops temporarily set up on the land belonging to the temple during the jatra season is sanctioned. The Deputy Commissioner will frame a reasonable scale of rates with reference to the nature of trade and publish it at the time of the jatra for the information of those concerned. The collections should be credited to the temple funds.
